MADAM SPEAKER.—I regret to make a reference to the sad demise of Sri C. Rajagopalachari on 26th December, 1972. Sri Rajagopalachari was one of the oldest statesman of our country. He held several positions with distinction. He was Premier of Madras during 1937-39; He was a member of the interim Government of India during 1946-47, was Governor of West Bengal and later Governor-General of India. He was for some time Minister in the Government of India and was again installed as the Chief Minister of Madras. Sri Rajagopalachari's name will live in history as a great patriot, scholar and thinker and will be remembered as one of the great men of our time. Sri Rajagopalachari was a great parliamentarian endowed with a high sense of wit and humour. He was the author of a number books, the most popular, among them being the Mahabharata and Ramayana written in very simple and lucid style. Prohibition and uplift of the Harijans were dear to his heart. Sri C. Rajagopalachari's death has taken away from us one of the very few old guards of our country.

I also wish to make a reference to the demise of Sriyuths Ayyan Gowda Lingana Gowda (24th August 1972) and M. S. Patil, the former members of this House and Sri B. L. Bayanna (28th January, 1973) a former member of the Representative Assembly.
